2. INTRODUCTION

PAIA gives effect to the right to access to information in terms of section 32 of the Constitution. This section provides everyone the right to access to information held by the state or any other person (or private body) when the information is required for the exercise or protection of any rights.

Section 51 of PAIA requires all private bodies to compile a PAIA Manual that provides information on both the types and categories of records held by the private body.

The purpose of PAIA is to:

- Foster a culture of transparency and accountability in public and private bodies by giving effect to the right to access to information, and;
- To actively promote a society in which the people of South Africa have effective access to information to enable them to exercise and protect all their rights more fully.

POPIA is South African data privacy Legislation that regulates the processing of personal information of data subjects (both personal and juristic) by responsible parties.

The purpose of the Act is to:

- Give effect to the constitutional right to privacy, subject to justifiable limitations aimed at balancing the right to privacy against other rights.
- Regulate the processing of personal information in harmony with international standards.
- Provides minimum requirements for the lawful processing of personal information.
- Provides rights and remedies to protect against abuses of personal information .

POPIA has amended the role of the SAHRC. In terms of POPIA the function of the SAHRC in terms of PAIA has been transferred to the Information Regulator who will be empowered to monitor both POPIA and PAIA and to handle complaints relating to access to information and the protection of personal information.

This Manual provides and outlines the types of records held by EVG and explains how requesters may submit requests to the records held in terms of PAIA. It further allows requesters to request access, object and request a correction of their personal information in terms of the requirements of POPIA.

EVG recognises everyone's right to access to information and is committed to provide access to the organisation's records where the proper procedural requirements set out by PAIA and POPIA have been met.

3. PURPOSE OF PAIA MANUAL

This PAIA Manual is useful for the public to-

- Know the recipients or categories of recipients to whom the personal information may be supplied.
- Know if EVG has planned to transfer or process personal information outside the Republic of South Africa and the recipients or categories of recipients to whom the personal information may be supplied; and

PAIA provides that a person may only request information from a Private Body if the requested information is required for the exercise or protection of a right. POPIA provides that a Data Subject may request a Responsible Party to confirm, free of charge, all the information it holds about the Data Subject and may request access to such information, including the information of third parties who have or have had access to such information. Where a Data Subject is required to pay a fee for any request for access services, the Responsible Party:

- Must provide the Data Subject with a written estimate of the payable amount before providing the service
- May require the requester to pay a deposit for all or part of the fee

If the Information Officer is unable to find the records requested or believe that the records do not exist, they will submit a detailed affidavit or affirmation to the requester giving notice that the records in question do not exist or cannot be found. The Information Officer will outline the steps they took to locate them.

12.3 EVG may request an extension to the time, but will only be able to do so if:

- The request is for a large number of records or requires that a large number of records are searched, and, without an extension, the search would interfere with the normal activities of EVG
- The request requires a search through records in an office of EVG that is not in the same city or town and could thus not be completed within 30 days; and/or
- It requires a level of consultation to act on the request, which cannot reasonably be completed within 30 days.

EVG will notify the requester of their intention to extend the initial time, and indicate the period of extension, the reason for the extension, and advise the requester that they have the right to –

- Appeal to the relevant authority
- Lodge a complaint with the regulator; or
- Institute proceedings in court against the extension as the case may be

EVG will also inform the requester of the process to be followed for each of the above-mentioned rights in the notice.

Once a request has been processed, the Information Officer will inform the requester of the outcome of the request and whether any additional information or fees are required.

- Reject the request due to a lack of procedural compliance; or

14. GROUNDS FOR REFUSAL

If a request for access is refused, EVG will advise the requester about the reason for refusal of access and may advise the requester to lodge an application with the court against the refusal for such request.

Chapter 4 of PAIA provides reasons for refusal. Note that these reasons do not mean that requests of such nature will be refused, it just means that access may be granted for such reasons.

The following may be reasons for refusal:

14.1 Mandatory Grounds for Refusal

With mandatory grounds for refusal, EVG must refuse the request. The following are mandatory grounds for refusal:

- The mandatory protection of privacy of a third party who is a natural person if the disclosure would involve the unreasonable disclosure of personal information about a third party, including a deceased individual
- The mandatory protection of commercial information of a third party if it contains
 - Trade secrets of a third party
 - financial, commercial, scientific, or technical information, other than trade secrets, of a third party, the disclosure of which would be likely to cause harm to the commercial or financial interests of that third party; or
 - information supplied in confidence by a third party the disclosure of which could reasonably be expected-
 - to put that third party at a disadvantage in contractual or other negotiations;
or
 - to prejudice that third party in commercial competition.
- The mandatory protection of certain confidential information of third parties if the disclosure of the record would constitute an action for breach of confidence owed to a third party in terms of an agreement.
- The mandatory protection of safety of individuals, and protection of property
- Mandatory protection of records privileged from production in legal proceedings
- The mandatory protection of research information of a third party, and protection of research information of EVG if such disclosure would place the research or the researcher at a serious disadvantage
- A record of EVG if the record consists of information that was supplied in confidence by a third party if the disclosure of which could reasonably be expected to prejudice the future supply of similar information, or information from the same source and if it is in the public interest that similar information, or information from the same source, should continue to be supplied.

14.2 Discretionary Grounds of Refusal

With discretionary grounds of refusal, the Information Officer must apply their minds and consider whether to refuse a request because of the following reasons:

- Economic, financial, and commercial interests of EVG, which may include
 - trade secrets
 - financial, commercial, scientific, or technical information, other than trade secrets, the disclosure of which would be likely to cause harm to the commercial or financial interests of EVG
 - contains information, the disclosure of which could reasonably be expected-
 - to put a public body at a disadvantage in contractual or other negotiations; or
 - to prejudice a public body in commercial competition; or
 - Computer programs owned by EVG which are protected by copyright and intellectual property laws
- Requests that are manifestly frivolous or vexatious, or which involves substantial and unreasonable diversion of resources

Note that if only part of a record is linked to an exemption ground, EVG is obliged to consider whether partial disclosure or information is possible whenever they determine that full disclosure is not possible and EVG will take reasonable steps to sever or redacts the part or parts that cannot be released to the requester and grant access to the rest of the record.

15. MANDATORY DISCLOSURE OF RECORDS IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Even if a discretionary or mandatory ground for refusal exists in relation to a request for access to records, there is the possibility that public interest in the disclosure of the record may be more important than the harm created by the release of the record.

Where the important of the public interest exists as stated above and the disclosure of the record would reveal:

- Evidence of a substantial contravention of or failure to comply with the law; or
- An imminent and serious public safety or environmental risk

Then EVG must grant access to the record despite the existence of the exemption grounds.

16. THIRD PARTY NOTIFICATION PROCESS

EVG is required, to take reasonable steps to inform a third party about a request for their record or records that might be a record that contains either:

- Personal information
- A SARS record
- Trade secrets
- Information, the release of which could constitute grounds for an action for breach of a duty of confidence; or research information that could expose someone or the subject matter to serious damage

The third party will be requested to:

- Make written or oral representation to the Information Officer why the request for access should be refused; or
- Give written consent for the disclosure of the record to the requester

EVG will inform the requester that a notice has been sent to a third party. Once this notification has been sent, EVG must make a final decision on whether to release the records within 30 days.

17. REMEDIES

EVG does not have an internal appeal procedure in relation to POPIA and PAIA. As such, the decision made by the Information Officer is final.

A requester may, amongst others, challenge the following decision of EVG:

- The tender or payment of the request fee
- The tender or payment of a deposit
- The access fee to be paid is too excessive
- The form of access granted
- The refusal of a request
- The procedure (including the period) for lodging the internal appeal
- Inappropriate time extension taken to respond to request for access
- Failure to disclose records
- The granting of a request for access to a record
- Refusal to grant a request to waive the fees

If a requester is unhappy with the decision, they may

- apply to a court for relief
- lodge a complaint with the information regulator

This must be done within 180 days of the decision from EVG.

A requester may lodge a complaint with the regulator, if they are not happy with a decision of EVG to:

- Refuse a request for access
- Demand payment of the request fee, or a deposit of the access fee
- Extend a period to deal with a request
- Grant access in a particular form

17.1 How to Complain to the Regulator

A complaint to the Regulator must be made in writing and a complaint form (Form 5) must be completed either manually or online.
